Your followers aren't underbuying.

They're not buyers.

Liking your content is not the same as needing your work.

"They'll eventually buy."

That's not a strategy.

That's the most expensive wish in your business.

A fan likes you.

A client trusts you with a problem.

The two look identical in your notifications and behave nothing alike in your bank account.

Four signs your audience is a fan club, not a customer base:

- High likes, no sales calls
- DMs say "love this," never "how do I hire you"
- Followers grow, revenue doesn't
- You've never asked anyone by name

Warm isn't ready.

Ready needs an offer, not more nurture.

The few who are ready are waiting for an invitation that never comes.

Do this week:

1. Name your offer in three posts.
2. Send five direct invitations by DM.
3. Stop counting followers. Count decisions.
