If your offer is getting silence, the price is not the problem.

The risk is.

Cheap buyers argue.

Serious buyers go quiet.

One is negotiating. The other is calculating.

They are not ghosting you.

They are running the numbers on what it costs them if you are wrong.

A lower price creates more doubt.

Not less.

Cheapness signals uncertainty. And uncertainty kills premium sales.

Premium buyers pay for certainty.

Not cheapness.

Give them a clear outcome, a timeline, and a promise. The price stops mattering.

Replace discounts with guarantees.

Watch what happens:

- Silence shortens.
- Objections vanish.
- Your rate holds.

Your offer is not too expensive.

It is under-protected.
