WHY GENERALISTS STAY BROKE

"Fifteen skills on the page. Five clients in the pipeline. Every month is a guessing game."

Maybe I should add one more service.

I will take whoever pays. I cannot afford to say no.

I am everything to everyone. Nobody to anyone.

THE WIDE NET TRAP

The more you offer, the less you are chosen.

Flexibility is not a strategy. It is a hiding place.

GENERALIST

Wide net
small catch

→

SPECIALIST

Sharp corner
premium clients

THE SHIFT

Generalists chase options. Specialists own outcomes.

The market does not reward range. It rewards a name. Become the person someone refers without thinking.

4 SHIFTS FROM BROKE TO BOOKED

How to niche without losing clients

🎯

Commit To One Pain

Stop being useful to everyone. Start being essential to someone.

🧲

Name The One Person

Not an industry. One human with one decision the market can picture.

🔪

Kill The Menu

Three offers means three doors. Five offers means no door at all.

📌

Repeat One Line

Repetition is what the market remembers. Variety is what it forgets.

THE MIRROR

Are you a generalist or a specialist?

SIGNAL	GENERALIST	SPECIALIST
Intro	Lists skills	Owns a problem
Bio	A resume	A diagnosis
Offer	A menu	A mission
Pricing	Hourly	Outcome
Memory	A comma	A period

3 MOVES TO GET SPECIFIC THIS WEEK

Turn a generalist's chaos into a specialist's pipeline

1. Audit Your Last 30 Days
   Delete any offer that produced under 10% of your revenue. It is draining your clarity.

2. Rewrite Your One-Liner
   Start with who it is for. End with what changes. Skip everything else.

3. Commit To 30 Days Of One
   Post about one problem only. Watch the right clients finally arrive.

> PRO TIP
> Niching down is not losing clients. It is becoming findable.

@SAMTRABULSI

STOP SELLING EVERYTHING. START OWNING ONE THING.

Comment BRAND and I will add you to the Brand Victory Circle — where experts build offers that actually sell.

COMMENT "BRAND"

@samtrabulsi · Brand Victory