You don't have a content problem.

You have a direction problem.

Most coaches post randomly.

A tip here. A story there.
No thread. No destination.

That's why it never converts.

The Content GPS Framework:

→ Destination: one client outcome
→ Route: your unique system
→ Waypoints: proof, insight, challenge
→ Arrival: the CTA

Destination first.

Every post answers:
'What do I want them to believe after reading this?'

If you don't know — neither will they.

Route = your signature system.

The same 5 steps, repeated in different formats.

Repetition is not boring.
Repetition is brand-building.

Waypoints are content types:

→ Pain post (they feel seen)
→ System post (they see the path)
→ Proof post (they believe it's possible)

Rotate. Never get stuck on one.

Comment CONTENT and I'll send you the Content GPS Framework.

30 days of direction.
Zero content paralysis.
