YOUR OFFER IS COSTING YOU CLIENTS

If they can't explain it, they won't buy it

@samtrabulsi

"I post consistently, I show my work, I know what I do — why isn't anyone reaching out?"

I've been posting for 6 months. Zero DMs.

Tried a "niche down" post. Still nothing.

Maybe I'm just not meant for this.

THE REAL PROBLEM

It's not your content. It's your offer clarity.

People can't buy what they can't understand in 3 seconds.

Vague expertise
nobody can act on

THE SHIFT

Your offer isn't a description. It's a decision.

When people read your offer and think "that's exactly for me" — they buy.

OFFER ANATOMY

A clear offer has 4 parts 🔩

👤 A specific person

Not "entrepreneurs." Try: "coaches with 3+ years who still trade time for money."

🎯 A concrete result

Not "clarity." Try: "a positioning statement that makes ideal clients say yes."

⚡ A defined timeframe

Vague timelines kill urgency. "In 4 weeks" beats "soon."

🛡️ A reason to believe

Proof, process, or a bold guarantee — remove the risk of saying yes.

SPOT YOURSELF

Unclear vs. Clear Offer

SIGNAL	UNCLEAR	CLEAR
Who it's for	"Anyone who…"	"Coaches with X" ✓
The result	"More clarity"	"Signed client"
Timeframe	"At your pace"	"In 30 days" 🌟
When asked "what do you do?"	Long explanation 💀	One sentence
Prospect reaction	"Interesting…"	"How do I start?"

FIX IT NOW

Rewrite your offer today 👇

Name one person

Write the exact job title, stage, or frustration of your best-fit client. One person only.

Name one result

What is the measurable, visible change they get? Write it as an outcome, not a process.

Put it in one sentence

Use this: "I help [person] achieve [result] in [time] — without [frustration]."

💡 If your ideal client can't repeat your offer back, it's still too vague.
