YOUR LOW PRICE IS NOT A STRATEGY IT'S A SIGNAL

"I dropped my price to fill the calendar. The calendar filled with people who haggle, ghost, and ask for refunds."

Maybe I should lower it again.

Lowered it. Got worse clients.

Maybe I'm just not worth more.

THE DISCOUNT TRAP

A low price will not fix weak positioning.

Cheap attracts shoppers. Premium attracts buyers.

CHEAP PRICE

Doubt
Negotiate
Compare

→

PREMIUM PRICE

Trust
Commit
Buy

THE SHIFT

Price is not a number. It's a position.

Serious buyers don't shop the cheapest option. They shop the safest one.

WHAT CHEAP PRICING COSTS YOU

4 hidden taxes of the lowest price

The Wrong Buyers

Discount pricing pulls in negotiators and tire-kickers. Premium pricing filters them out before the call.

The Wrong Comparison

Cheap forces you to compete on cost. Now you're a line item, not a category of one.

The Confidence Drain

Underpricing eats your conviction. You start over-delivering to justify a number you already discounted.

The Closed Door

Serious buyers skip the lowest tier on principle. Your price is locking out the clients you actually want.

THE MIRROR

Cheap pricing vs premium pricing. Which column is yours?

SIGNAL	CHEAP	PREMIUM
Buyer	Hagglers	Decision-makers
Reaction	"Is this real?"	"This must be good."
Sales call	Convince	Qualify
Delivery	Over-deliver	Stay in scope
Repeat business	Ghosts	Refers

THE MOVE

Reprice your offer in 3 steps

1. Raise The Number
   Take your current price and add 40%. That's your new floor, not your ceiling.

2. Tighten The Offer
   Cut what you used to throw in. Premium price, premium scope. No more silent discounts.

3. Hold The Line
   Lose the wrong buyers on purpose. The right ones will say yes faster than the cheap ones did.

> PRO TIP
> If nobody flinches at your price, it's still too low. A premium offer should make the wrong buyers self-eliminate.

@SAMTRABULSI

STOP DISCOUNTING. START POSITIONING.

Comment BRAND and I'll add you to the Brand Victory Circle — where experts learn to charge what they're actually worth.

COMMENT "BRAND"

@samtrabulsi · Brand Victory